EASTERN NEWS.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.)

Harrison Nominated for Governor of Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug 5.—Hon Benj Harrison of this city was unanimously nominated by the Republican State central committee for governor, vice Orth.

One of the Kansas Train Robbers Captured.

KANSAS CITY, Aug 5.—The train robbers have been cornered and Chas Pitts captured with letters on his person from other members of the band implicating a number of prominent and heretofore respectable men.

National Guard Military Encampment.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug 5.—At the National Guard encampment in Fairmount Park at least 3,000 men are under canvas. This morning Governor Hartranft, Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard, established his headquarters in the camp. Adjutant General Latta also quartered himself in an adjoining tent. Major General Bankson has ordered the first division to participate in a grand review Thursday, and it is expected nearly 1,000 will be in line.

Seymour Declines to be a Candidate for Governor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Seymour reiterates his determination not to run for governor or accept any position in the public service which Tilden may [illegible] to the Presidency of which it is believed Seymour is far from confident.

[illegible] in Wool Market.

BOSTON, Aug 5.—The demand for wool has been [illegible] and sales comprising 4,764,700 pounds [illegible] the largest ever reported in a single week. The [illegible] of the past week has indeed [illegible] unprecedented in the [illegible], comprising 12,461,200 pounds all of which with some trifling exceptions [illegible] into the hands of manufacturers. Prices of [illegible] and wool are now lower than for many [illegible], and this is one of the reasons why manufac[illegible] with such confidence. Activity [illegible] have [illegible] rather un[illegible] Delaine and [illegible] demand [illegible] been principally for Ohio and Michigan fleeces [illegible] although all kinds have been in [illegible] and are held with more firmness. [illegible] been a further advance of 1@2c on fine [illegible] and Pennsylvania fleeces, and Michigan [illegible] are also quoted at fully one cent higher [illegible] in Ohio and Pennsylvania include [illegible] at [illegible]@40c, including large lines [illegible] X and XX [illegible], XX and above 38 [illegible] with very little XX in good condition to be [illegible] 40c. The sales of Michigan have been [illegible] pounds, and include XX at [illegible] and [illegible] X at [illegible], the exact closing figure 32½ [illegible] for X and [illegible] and 34½ for XX. In Wisconsin fleeces the sales were 50,000 pounds at 31c [illegible] delaine, in new [illegible] advanced to 38@40c. Sales [illegible] the week including 118,000 lbs. at 40@44c for [illegible] 50@60c for fine delaines and [illegible] for unwashed combings. The market was [illegible] at the close and holders very indifferent [illegible] selling at current [illegible]. There has been [illegible] in Canadian combing, the sales including 10,000 pounds at 50c and 300,000 pounds [illegible] but it is understood at about 56c. For combing and pulled there has been more inquiry, with sales of 15,000 pounds at 38@40c. The sales of California have been 1,912,000 pounds. [illegible] lots of very choice Northern have been [illegible] but the principal transactions were [illegible] of 19@26c; market very firm and de[illegible] held for full prices, [illegible] lots of in[illegible] sold at very low prices. The de[illegible] has [illegible] and is in sympathy [illegible] the active movements of fleece; the sales [illegible] 297,000 pounds. Some choice Maine super [illegible] but the principal sales have been in the [illegible] for super and XX.

Failures.

[illegible] Aug 5.—[illegible] Sadler & Co., clothiers, [illegible] 397,000.

[illegible] owner of the yacht Lurline, and [illegible] from Europe to day.

Demand for Silver in New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The banks of this city are [illegible] silver for [illegible] and [illegible] to-day by the sub[illegible] Treasury the cry from the interior [illegible] change. They are unable to [illegible] a fraction of their [illegible] wants. [illegible] it was stated this morning that [illegible] worth of subsidiary silver had [illegible] the beginning of the redemp[illegible] currency, and that coin could not be paid out [illegible] lived from [illegible] of the [illegible]. Only about half a [illegible] worth of silver coin is on hand at present in the U S Treasury of this city, and this it was believed would be required for the [illegible]ption of [illegible].

Grain Shipments.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Clearances of grain from [illegible] for Europe for the week [illegible] 500,000 bushels of wheat, including about 150,[illegible] for the Continent; 1,190,000 bushels of [illegible] nearly all of it bad for the United Kingdom [illegible] rye, [illegible] for Norway and Sweden, [illegible] oats for France and United Kingdom [illegible].

[illegible] of the Chicago Evening Telegraph.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The Evening Telegraph, Mr [illegible], which started eight weeks ago, and which has been a lively and exceptionally brilliant [illegible] up to this time, which has advocated the claims of S J. Tilden for President, published [illegible] this evening. The editorial announcement [illegible] says the expense of the past [illegible] has demonstrated the fact that the city of Chicago and surrounding country will not support an afternoon daily such as the Telegraph aspired to be, and its older and better established rivals.

[illegible] to Re-establish Fast Mails.

The [illegible] now pending in the Senate to restore [illegible] between New York and Chicago will [illegible] adopted by that body, and very probably by the House also, and thus reduce again the [illegible] mail time between the two oceans to six days.

Gov. Woods Invited to Stump Ohio.

[illegible] has been extended Gov. Woods [illegible] of Oregon and Utah and now of San [illegible], by the Republican executive committee [illegible] the state in the approaching [illegible]. It is not yet known whether he will [illegible].

[illegible] for Hayes and Wheeler.

[illegible] H. Horton, of San Diego, who is here on private business, announces that he will support Hayes and Wheeler, notwithstanding his recent [illegible] with the Democratic party.

Gold and Stocks.

NEW YORK, Aug 5.—Gold closed at 111⅞@112 [illegible] at 1, governments dull and steady, [illegible] dull and steady.

[illegible] Wiley declared Unimpeachable.

[illegible] committee investigating Justice Wiley of the district supreme court, unanimously declare there is no evidence to warrant his impeachment.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Ordway before the Real Estate Pool.

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—Ordway was before the real estate pool and satisfactorily accounted for all the expenditures made by him.

The Senate adheres to its Amendments of [illegible] the Harbor Bill.

The Senate insisted on its amendments to the river and harbor bill, and the chair appointed Allison, Sargent and Ransom on conference.

[illegible] of Judge Humphrey Suspended.

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—The House committee investigating charges against Judge Humphrey have indefinitely postponed their further consideration unless Congress takes a recess or prolongs the session.

Boutwell's Finance Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—The bill introduced by Boutwell to-day provides for the creation of a commission, to consist of three Senators and three members of the House of Representatives and three persons appointed by the President of the United States, to consider the expediency of issuing a silver dollar, and making the same a legal tender. Their conclusions are to be reported to Congress at the next session. The bill proposes to appropriate the sum of ten thousand dollars to defray their personal expenses while engaged in the investigation.

Blumenberg's Bail Reduced.

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—Rudolph Blumenberg arrested in San Francisco recently charged with having a year or two ago embezzled a large amount of District bonds placed in his hands by contractors here, was brought to Washington yesterday. When arrested in California two indictments were sent there and he was held to bail in $10,000 in each case for his appearance here. Subsequently other indictments were sent on and returned and he applied for a reduction of bail. After a hearing in chambers Judge Wiley fixed the amount of bail at $5,000 in each case.

An Unexpected Disclosure.

Considerable quiet fun is made here among Republicans over the fact that the Democratic investigation committee drew from Sergeant-at-Arms Ordway the statement that Luttrell failed to account for more than about one-third the sum drawn by him for expenses as member of the Indian Investigation committee and that Ordway supplied the omission by intimating that Luttrell needed more than the rest because he lost some Ten [illegible] en route. Where is Luttrell Williams?

[illegible] of Resumption Repeal Poison.

The bill repealing the resumption clause was carried in the committee by the defection of Payne of Ohio, representing a strong Republican district especially on the hard money platform. The poison of inflation extends gradually among House Democrats, only about a dozen can be relied on to resist the tide in favor of the repudiation of the resumption pledge. Those who wrote to Tilden to ask his views on the proposed repeal assuring him they would follow his advice faithfully received no reply. A single word from the Democratic candidate for President would have been sufficient to prevent the vote which took place in the committee on banking, but it never came. This indisputable fact will help men to understand Tilden's real position.

Oregon Modoc Indemnity Bill.

The bill passed through the House by Representative Lane to reimburse Oregon and California for Modoc war expenditures is still pending in the Senate. It appropriates $70,000 for Oregon and not the merely insignificant sum of $7,000 as transformed by telegraphic error.

Lane to-day introduced a bill to reimburse A. P. Jones and others for money deposited in Portland government depository for surveys in Oregon.

River and Harbor Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—The conference committee on the river and harbor appropriation bill have agreed upon a report which will be printed Monday. The bill is not increased above the total of $5,000,000. The changes are few, and consist generally in the transfer of small amounts from one purpose to another and the reinstatement of small House items omitted by the Senate.

The Oregon items in the river and harbor appropriation bill are retained at the sums fixed by the Senate.

Probable Changes in the Indian Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—The Commissioner of Indian Affairs is of opinion that important changes in the Indian service for California and other Pacific States and Territories, will be necessary when the Indian appropriation bill is finally passed. Heretofore most of the expenses for California, Nevada, Oregon and some other portions of the Pacific Coast service, have been paid out of the incidental funds appropriated instead of sums for specific purposes. The [illegible] of the service [illegible] soon as to render it impossible to estimate the requirements in advance, and a large discretion has been allowed to the Department. One half of the $5,000,000 asked for by the Indian Bureau is required to fulfill the specific demands of the treaties. The House of Representatives in attempting to reduce the Indian appropriations 50 per cent., have therefore been compelled to cut that amount out of the other half. The general terms of the reduction was to refuse to recognize claims of Indians excepting those with whom we have treaty relations by Congress. The tribes which have been pacified without such treaties are not considered to have any claims for appropriations. The public bounty is therefore principally distributed in aid of those who have been first at war with the whites.

All the agencies in California will probably be consolidated under one agent, if the bill passes as it now stands, providing only $30,000 for incidental expenses in California and other inadequate amounts for other parts of the Pacific Coast.

Gold Note Bank Circulation Bill.

The House banking and currency committee have voted to report and recommend the passage at the first opportunity of Page's bill authorizing gold note banks to issue 90 per cent of their circulation and making their notes redeemable at the San Francisco sub-treasury, and providing that they shall keep 5 per cent. reserve in the sub treasury, instead of 25 per cent. in their own banks.

Excepting the matters above noted, and the passage through the House of Piper's marine shipping bill, no local legislation for the Pacific coast has been accomplished this week. On the other hand the House vote to-day in passing Gibson's joint resolution for the [illegible] of inquiry concerning financial topics is believed to have postponed all further Congressional action on the silver question until next winter. Sargent a few days ago called the senate's attention to the fact that business in [illegible] were disturbed by the continued pendency of the Hawaiian bill, and gave notice that as soon as the impeachment trial and other matters were out of the way, he would insist on its consideration at the earliest possible opportunity. Mitchell remarked, "I fully concur in that suggestion." Booth is still opposed to legislative ratification of the treaty.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—Thurman called up the Senate bill to provide for and regulate the counting of votes for President and Vice President, and the decision of the question arising thereon which passed the Senate on the 24th of March last, but the vote on it was finally reconsidered on the 19th of April. He said his object was to have the bill passed now without a vote, that it might go to the House and be passed this session if possible.

Frelinghuysen moved that the vote by which the bill was ordered to a third reading be reconsidered and it be further amended in the Senate before being sent to the House, agreed to. The matter was then laid aside, with the understanding that it should be taken up after the amendments should be prepared.

Morton moved to take up the resolution to print 10,000 copies of the President's message and accompanying documents, in reference to the trouble at Hamburg.

Thurman hoped it would not be taken up because it would give rise to a very useless debate. There was more important business before the Senate than printing papers as mere electioneering documents. The motion to take up the resolution was agreed to.

Thurman then moved to lay it aside and take up the bill recently reported from the committee on judiciary to provide for the creation of a sinking fund to settle the indebtedness due from the Pacific railroad. Rejected by a strict party vote.

In the course of the discussion Morton said he agreed with his friend from Ohio that there was but one object in having these documents printed and that was to circulate them among the people to convey to them information on this subject and he regretted to observe in reading the letters of Tilden and Hendricks that they did not see fit to take notice of this transaction at Hamburg and transactions of a kindred character throughout the south. They had much to say about finances, economy and reform, but nothing about these murders.

The discussion became entirely political and was continued during the morning hour being participated in by Peterson, Thurman, Cameron, Gordon and McMillan.

The chair then presented the unfinished business bill to establish post routes.

Boutwell submitted a joint resolution supporting the appointment of a commission to consider the expediency of issuing a silver dollar and making it a legal tender. Referred.

On motion of Edmunds, the regular order being the postal bill, it was tabled—32 to 17.

Morton's resolution was considered—32 to 18.

Thurman again moved to postpone and take up the Pacific railroad sinking fund bills but by unanimous consent, Ingalls reported from the conference committee the Osage Indian bill, which was debated by Edmunds, Thurman, Ingalls and others. Finally Morton got the floor and said he intended to reply to the Senator from Ohio. He said whatever murders were committed in the North were not to control the politics of statesmen. The men who wrote for the newspapers directed Southern murders. Tilden and Hendricks' letters did not mention the Hamburg massacre. He would publicly say they dare not denounce the men who committed the murders at Hamburg and elsewhere because their prospects of carrying four or five of the Republican States depended on the influence and support of the men who committed these murders. Morton read from the report of the attorney general of South Carolina on the Hamburg difficulty, and said terrorism existed in nearly every southern State which prevented the punishment of any man for killing another, and challenged any Democrat to name an instance of the punishment of a white man for killing a negro.

Merrimon and Withers said it was often done in their State.

Morton said it was possible if a white Republican and a negro were fighting the white Republican would be punished. Morton predicted that Gov. Chamberlain's efforts to punish murderers would be in vain. If the leaders of the Democratic party would denounce these things and demand justice on the perpetrators murders would be stopped. These murders were certainly political.

Thurman said Morton must make his little speech on this Indian bill and with the same ancient saber stir up the Northern mind and make hatred between sections. He supposed this was a chronic disease of Morton. Nothing seemed to afford him so much delight as to find a few colored people in the South killed. He blushed for the Senator who said Tilden and Hendricks had not mentioned the Hamburg massacre. They would have been the laughing stock of the whole country had they done it. Why didn't Wheeler mention these things in his letter? Why didn't Hayes make liberal extracts from Morton's speeches and not the bloody flag instead of speaking mildly and kindly towards the south? If the attorney general of South Carolina and Chamberlain were creditable the crime was without description. It added brutality to cowardice. The shooting of the prisoners was a crime too great to be described. Doubtless there were indiscreet men in the south and they were the worst enemies of the South. The entire militia of South Carolina were colored men with arms taken from white companies. Grant said "Let us have peace." If there is no end of this crusade of hate against the South. When would peace come.

Morton—When murders on account of race cease. Let the killing cease and the Republicans would done talking about it. Hendricks did not condemn the bloodshed, but condemned the party trying to make capital on account of it.

The conference report on the Osage bill was agreed to 27 to 18.

Saulsbury resumed the discussion of Morton's resolution for the punishment of the Hamburg criminals.

McMillan, Maxey and Harvey spoke when McCreery asked that this partisan debate should stop and that the Senate pass the bill for the relief of a worth old man.

Edmunds said he wanted to do justice to many old men gone to their graves through the political associates of McCreery.

Pending the discussion the Senate went into executive session after which it adjourned.

House.

Bland's silver bill was taken up as the regular order, Hale suggesting that the attempt of the gentleman (Bland) to force the bill through in the morning hour was useless and he thought the gentleman should withdraw his call for the previous question.

Bland replied that when the bill demonetizing silver was passed surreptitiously by the gentleman who represented the money sharks of the country there had been no filibustering and [illegible] could he [illegible] of him should he give up the [illegible] through his bill because of filibustering.

Frye said the statement that the [illegible] went through surreptitiously is untrue. It had [illegible] three years before Congress.

Bland—It was a fraud.

Dilatory motions were made by O'Brien and Townsend of Pennsylvania in order to consume the morning hour.

The morning hour having expired the bill went over without action.

The majority and minority reports by the committee on expenditures in the War Department and the Department of Justice were made by Clymer and Caulfield and ordered printed.

The committee on banking and currency reported a bill to repeal section four of the resumption act of Jan 14 1875 which directs the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem in coin the legal tender notes then outstanding and proposed to allow an hour and a half for its discussion and a like time for the discussion for a further bill which he was directed to report providing for a commission. He would decline however to allow amendments to be offered. He opened the argument by declaring his belief that the fixing of a day for resumption was a hopeless menace to prosperity, that it offered no good and that it was utterly useless for all practical purposes. The best business men of the country had said so to his committee. The bill which it was proposed to repeal in part had passed Congress as a party necessity, under the operation of the previous question.

Goode, of the banking committee, advocated the repeal.

Townsend a member of the committee opposed the bill, declaring the legislation submitted by that body came wrong end foremost. It would have been the part of wisdom to endeavor to ascertain the cause of financial difficulty and then to apply a remedy.

Haymond another member of the committee spoke in favor of repeal as something which if it did no other good would restore tranquility and inspire hope and confidence.

Hewitt believed the resumption act was one of the weakest and crudest, most insignificant and poorest acts of legislation. Still it pledged the national honor and that pledge he would try to redeem. If he was asked whether he thought it practicable to redeem on the 1st of January 1879 he would answer frankly no but wanted to deal with the question with wisdom and statesmanship. There was but one way to deal with it and that was to take the whole subject into consideration.

Kasson of the committee wanted the committee to take into consideration that the politicians presented this bill just after Tilden's letter and the dangerous significance of this bill. None knew better than Gov. Tilden that it left no port of sailing and no time at which to arrive instead of sailing for Liverpool as Tilden suggested it was clearing for Cowes and a market. [Laughter.] O'Brien and Wilson opposed the measure. Hale discussed its party bearing and Cox closed the argument with the previous question, refusing to let Hewitt offer a substitute. The Republicans abstained from voting on the previous question, leaving the House apparently without a quorum and preventing action.

Finally Cox allowed Hewitt's substitute and a vote was taken on Hewitt's substitute which provides for a commission of three Senators three Representatives and three experts to consider what measures are necessary and practicable to accomplish resumption at the earliest possible time, consistent with the interest of the country and report a bill embodying the result on or before December 1 1876.

Fort asked if Hewitt offered it as chairman of a Democratic committee, which caused great confusion.

There was great interest in the vote members crowding round the desk. Finally it was announced, yeas 97 nays 104. The substitute was rejected and Cox's bill as reported by the committee passed 106 to 83.

Cox then reported a bill for a commission of three senators three representatives and three experts to inquire—first into the change that has taken place in the relative value of gold and silver and the causes thereof whether permanent or otherwise, and the effect thereof on trade, commerce, finance and the productive interests of the country and on the standard value in this and other countries; second into a policy of a restoration of the double standard in this country and if restored, what the legal relation between the two coins—silver and gold—shall be; third into the question of the policy of continuing legal tender notes concurrently with the metallic standard, and the effect thereof on the labor industries and wealth of the country; fourth into the best manner of providing for facilitating resumption of specie payment; the commission to report on or before the 15th of January 1877.

Hubbell member of the banking committee said he favored the pending measure believing the resumption bill a mistake.

Chittenden asked "Is not its repeal and repudiation inexcusable and unpalliated?" He quoted from a recent letter of Hewitt in support of his position. A four per cent gold interest bearing bond would stop further shipments of gold and turn it hither for investment in such bonds making the substantial resumption of specie long before 1879.

Holman said it was absolutely impossible to carry out the resumption act. While it promoted the advantage of interests in capital it depressed labor and laborers.

Cannon called on the House not to do half a good thing in the passage of this bill but to do the whole thing by engrafting on it Bland's silver bill.

McMahon favored the measure as a concession to the people.

Burchard of Illinois, declared that a vote for this measure would be a vote against resumption.

An hour and a half debate on the bill took place turning chiefly on the question whether the bill demonetizing silver was or was not passed through the House surreptitiously and without reading, the affirmative being held by Beck, Holman and Fort and the negative by Kasson and Townsend of Pennsylvania. Finally the question was taken and the bill passed.

A report of the conference committee on the Osage bill was made by Goodin and agreed to. House adjourned.

Indemnity Demanded.

LONDON, Aug 5.—A dispatch from Athens to the Times reports that the French and German ambassadors have intimated to the Porte that they will leave Constantinople to morrow unless indemnity for the two consuls murdered at Salonica is paid and sentences of military and naval commanders publicly read. The Porte hesitates to execute sentences fearing resentment of Musselmen.

Turkish War News.

LONDON, Aug 5.—A dispatch from Belgrade contains the following official bulletin: The Turks attacked our army at Tessepabab yesterday. Fighting lasted seven hours. The center of the Turkish army was driven back one mile. Gen Harovat with attacked the Turks. The engagement continuing Servians took entrenchment at Mislorla and penetrated the Turkish camp.

VIENNA, Aug 5.—A dispatch to the Times says the Servians admit they sank torpedoes in the Danube to prevent any possible operations of the Turkish fleet. They claim that there is no danger to regular navigation.

The Russian society of Red Cross has sent a sanitary train, with nurses to the scene of war in Servia.

The Standard's Puratrichin correspondence says the indications are that the fighting at Malnzoir has resulted in another Turkish success.

THE SIOUX CAMPAIGN.

Hostile Indians Returning to the Reservations.

ST PAUL, Aug 5.—News by way of Bismarck is to the effect that Rain in the Face accompanied by 250 lodges of Indians from the hostile camp have arrived at Standing Rock. This Indian murdered the traders of Stanley's expedition in 1873 and was arrested therefor by Capt Tom Custer but escaped and is said to have cut the heart from Capt Custer's body and to have fired the last shot at Custer. An intelligent man states that though special efforts was [illegible] on the part of the Indians at the front [illegible] to make a showing still there were not [illegible] lodges present while there should have been over [illegible] from which it would seem that large numbers are with the hostiles. There are [illegible] well [illegible] who rate the Sioux fighting force at 7000 and believe there are 1100 well armed warriors in the field.

From the Eugene Guard we learn that a gentleman named Cummings, a tailor at Roseburg has mysteriously disappeared. A few evenings ago he started off with a bundle of cloth, leaving his key in the shop door, saying he was going to see his washerwoman. Since that time he has not been seen or heard from. It is not known that he has made such loans to no one anything and left in the possession of a gentleman a promissory note calling for $1,000, a reasonable [illegible]. The belief is entertained that he has been foully dealt with.

The Underwood building at Eugene was sold last week for the sum of $4,000. Norris Humphrey being the purchaser.

TILDEN'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)

ALBANY, July 31, 1876.

GENTLEMEN: When I had the honor to receive the personal delivery of your letter on behalf of the Democratic National Convention held on the 28th of June at St. Louis advising me of my nomination as candidate for the constituency represented by that body for the office of President of the United States I answered that at my earliest convenience and in conformity with usage I would prepare and transmit to you my acceptance. I now avail myself of the first interval in my occupations to fulfill that engagement. The convention before making its nominations adopted a declaration of principles which as a whole seems to me a wise exposition of the necessities of our country and of the reforms needed to bring back the government to its true functions and to restore the purity of its administration and to renew the prosperity of the people, but some of these reforms are so urgent that they claim more than a passing approval. The necessity of reform in the public expenses, federal, state and municipal, and modes of federal taxation justified all the prominence given to it in the declaration of the St. Louis convention. The present depression in all business and industries of the people which is depriving labor of its employment and carrying want to so many homes has its principal cause in the excessive government consumption under illusions of specious prosperity engendered by facts. The policy of the federal government wasting capital has been going on ever since 1865 which could only end in universal disaster. The federal taxes for the last eleven years reach the gigantic sum of four thousand five hundred millions of dollars; local taxation has amounted to one third as much more. The vast aggregate being not less than seven thousand five hundred millions. This enormous taxation followed the civil conflict that had greatly impaired our aggregate wealth and had made prompt reduction of expenses impossible. It was aggravated by such unscientific and ill adjusted methods of taxation that the increased sacrifices of the people were beyond the receipts. It was aggravated financial policy which tended to diminish the energy, skill and economy of production and frugality of private consumption and induced miscalculations in business and an unremunerative use of capital and labor. Even in prosperous times the daily wants of industrious communities press close upon their daily earnings. The margin of possible national savings is at best a small percentage of the national earnings, yet for these eleven years the government consumption has been a larger portion of the national earnings than the whole people can possibly save even in prosperous times for all new investments the consequences of these errors are now a present public calamity but they were never doubtful never invisible. They were necessary and inevitable and were foreseen and depicted when the waves of that fictitious prosperity ran highest.

In a speech made by me on the 24th of September, 1868, it was said of these taxes that they bear heavily on every man's income upon every industry, and upon every business in the country, and year by year they are destined to press still more heavily unless they arrest the system that gives rise to them. It was comparatively easy when values were doubling under the repeating issue of legal tender paper money to pay out of the froth of our growing and apparent wealth these taxes but when values recede and sink towards their natural scale the tax gatherer takes from us not only our income not only our profits but also a portion of our capital. I do not wish to exaggerate or alarm. I simply say that we cannot afford the costly policy of the Radical majority of Congress; we cannot afford that policy toward the south; we cannot afford magnificent and oppressive centralism into which our government is being converted; we cannot afford the present magnificent scale of taxation. To the secretary of the Treasury I said early in 1865, there is not a royal road for the government more than for an individual or corporation: what you want to do now is to cut down your expenses and live within your income. I would give all the legerdemain of finance and financiering—I would give the whole of it for the old, homemade maxim of "live within your income." This reform will be resisted at every step but it must be pressed persistently. We see to-day the immediate representatives of the people in one branch of Congress while struggling to reduce expenditures compelled to confront the menace of the Senate and Executive, that unless objectionable appropriations be consented to the operations of government thereunder shall suffer detriment or cease. In my judgment an amendment to the constitution ought to be devised separating into distinct bills appropriations for the various departments of the public service, and excluding from each bill all appropriations for other objects and all independent legislation. In that way alone can the revisory power of each of the two Houses and of the Executive be preserved and exempted from the moral distress which often compels assent to objectionable appropriations rather than stop the wheels of government. An accessory cause enhancing distress in business is to be found in the systematic and insupportable misgovernment imposed upon the states of the South. Besides the ordinary effects of an ignorant and dishonest administration it has inflicted on them enormous issues of fraudulent bonds, the scanty avails of which were wasted or stolen and the existence of which is a public discredit tending to bankruptcy or repudiation. Taxes generally oppressive in some instances have confiscated the entire income of property and totally destroyed its market value. It is impossible that these evils should not re-act on the prosperity of the whole country. Nobler motives of humanity concur with the material interests of all in requiring every obstacle to be removed to complete a durable reconciliation between a kindred population once unnaturally estranged on the basis recognized by the St. Louis platform. The Constitution of the United States with its amendments is universally accepted as a final settlement of the controversies which engendered the civil war. But in aid of a result so beneficent the moral influence of good citizens, as well as every government authority ought to be lent not alone to maintain their just equality before the law but likewise to establish a cordial fraternity and good will among citizens whatever their race or color who are now united in the one destiny of common self government. If the duty shall be assigned to me I should not fail to exercise the powers with which the laws and Constitution of our country clothe its chief magistrate and to protect all its citizens, whatever their former condition in every political and personal right.

Reform is necessary declares the St. Louis convention to establish a sound currency, to restore public credit and maintain national the honor and it goes on to demand a judicious system of preparation by public economies by official retrenchment and by wise finances which shall enable the nation to assure the whole world of its perfect readiness to meet any of its promises at the call of the creditor entitled to payment. The object demanded by the Convention is the resumption of specie payments on legal tender notes of the United States that would not only restore public credit and maintain the national honor but establish sound currency for the people. The methods by which this object is to be pursued and means by which this object is to be attained are disclosed by what the convention demands for the future and by what it denounces in the past. The resumption of specie payments by the government of the United States on its legal tender notes would establish specie payments by all banks on all their notes. The official statement made on the 12th of May shows the amount of bank notes to be 300,000,000 less $1,900,000 held by themselves. Against these 628,000,000 of notes the banks held $141,000,000 legal tender notes or a little more than five per cent of their amount but they also held on deposit in the Federal Treasury as security for these notes bonds of the United States, worth in gold about $300,000,000 available and current in all foreign money markets. In resuming, the banks even if it were possible for their notes to be presented for payment, would have five hundred millions of specie funds to pay 290 millions of notes without contracting their loans to their customers or calling on any private director for payment. Suspended banks undertaking to resume have usually been obliged to collect from needy borrowers means to redeem their excessive issue and to provide reserves. A vague idea of distress is therefore often associated with the process of resumption but the conditions which caused distress in former instances do not exist. The government has only to make good its own promises and the banks can take care of themselves without distressing anybody. The government is therefore the sole delinquent. The amount of legal tender notes of the United States now outstanding is less than 370 millions of dollars besides 34 millions of fractional currency. How shall the government make these notes at all times as good as specie? It has to provide in reference to the mass which would be kept in use by the wants of business a central reserve of coin adequate to the adjustment of temporary fluctuations of international balances and as a guarantee against transient loans artificially created by panic or by speculation. It has also to provide for the payment in coin of such fractional currency as may be presented for redemption and such inconsiderable portions of legal tenders as individuals may from time to time desire to convert for special use or in order to lay by in coin their little stores of money. To make the coin now in the treasury available for the object of this reserve to gradually strengthen and enlarge that reserve and to provide for such other exceptional demand for coin as may arise does not seem to be a work of difficulty. If wisely planned and pursued it ought not to cost any sacrifice to the business of the country. [illegible] should on the contrary revive hope and confidence. The coin in the treasury [illegible] including what is held against [illegible] certificates amounted to nearly 74,000,000. The current of precious metals which has flown out of our country for eleven years from July 1st 1865 to June 30 [illegible] averaging nearly [illegible] 76,000,000 a year was $832,000,000 in the whole period of which 602,000,000 were the product of our mines. To match this [illegible] by interrupting [illegible] treatment [illegible] and by acquiring [illegible] without [illegible] abroad [illegible] of the [illegible] market is [illegible] perceptibly wasted by practical knowledge [illegible]. With respect to what over supply [illegible] the wants of business may [illegible] the United States and which [illegible] will be retained for use [illegible]. They can either be paid or they can be absorbed into a vast mass of securities held as investment [illegible] of the rate of interest they draw. Even if they were to remain in their present form and the government agreed to pay on them a rate of interest making them desirable investments they would cease to circulate and take their place with government state municipal and other corporate and private bonds of which a thousand millions exist among us. In the perfect ease with which they can be changed from currency into investments lies the only danger to be guarded against in the adoption of general measures intended to remove a clearly ascertained surplus that is withdrawn from any which are not a permanent excess beyond the wants of business. Even more mischief would result from any measures which affected the public imagination with the fear of an apprehended scarcity. In a community where credit is so much used to fluctuations of values the vicissitudes in business are largely caused by the temporary beliefs of men even before their beliefs can be confirmed to ascertained realities. The amount of currency necessary at a given time cannot be determined arbitrarily and should be assumed on conjecture that its amount is subject to both permanent and temporary changes. An enlargement of it, which seemed to be durable happened at the beginning of the civil war by a substituted use of currency in the place of individual credits. It varies with certain states of business. It fluctuates with regularity at different seasons: for instance, when buyers of grain and other agricultural products begin their operations they usually need to borrow capital or circulating credits by which to make purchases and want these funds in currency capable of being distributed in small sums among numerous sellers. An additional need of currency at such times as five or more per cent of the whole volume and if a surplus beyond what is required for ordinary use does not happen to be on hand at the money centers a scarcity of currency ensues and also stringency in the loan market. It was in reference to such experiences that in the discussion of this subject in my annual message to the New York legislature in January, 1875, a suggestion was made that the federal government was bound to redeem every portion of its issues which the public does not wish to use. Having assumed to monopolize the supply of currency and enacted exclusions against everybody else, it is bound to furnish all which the wants of business require, the system should allow the volume of circulating credits to ebb and flow according to every changing want of business. It should imitate as closely as possible the natural laws of trade which it has superseded by artificial contrivances. In a similar discussion in my message of January 1876 it was said that resumption should be effected by such measures as would keep the aggregate amount of currency self adjusting during all process without creating at any time an artificial scarcity and without exciting public imagination with alarms which impair confidence and contract the whole large machinery of credit and disturb the natural operations of business. Public economy, official retrenchment and wise finance are means which the St Louis Convention indicates as a provision for resources and redemption. The best resource is a reduction of expenses of the government below its income for that imposes no new change on the people. If however improvidence and waste which have conducted it to a period of falling revenues, oblige us to supplement the results of economies and retrenchments by some resorts to loans we should not hesitate. The government ought not to speculate on its own dishonor in order to save interest on its broken promises which it still compels private individuals to accept at a fictitious par. The highest national honor is not only right but would prove profitable. The public debt of nine hundred and eighty five millions bears interest at 6 per cent in gold and seven hundred and twelve millions at 5 per cent in gold. The average interest is 5.28 per cent. A financial policy which should secure the highest credit and wisely availed of ought gradually to obtain a reduction of 1 per cent. interest on most of the loans. A saving of 1 per cent on the average would be one hundred and seventy seven millions a year in gold, that saving regularly invested at 4½ per cent. would in less than 35 years extinguish the principal and the whole one thousand seven hundred millions of funded debt might be paid by this saving alone without cost to the people. It is best even when preparations shall have been matured on the exact debt, that it would have to be chosen with reference to the existing state of trade and credit operations in our own country and the course of foreign commerce and condition of exchange with other nations.

The specific measures and actual dates are matters of detail having reference to ever changing conditions. They belong to the domain of practical, administrative statesmanship. The captain of a steamer about starting from New York to Liverpool does not assemble a council over his ocean chart a human intelligence must be at the helm to place the shifting forces of waters and winds to feel the elements day by day, and guide to mastery over them such preparations are nothing without them. A legislative committee fixing a day and official promises are shams. Among thoughtful men whose judgment will at least sway public opinion, an attempt to act on such a command or such promises without preparation would end in a new suspension. It would be a fresh calamity prolific of confusion, distrust and distress. The act of Congress of July 14, 1875, enacted that on and after the 1st of July, 1879, the secretary of the treasury shall redeem, in coin legal tender notes of the United States on presentation at the office of the assistant treasurer in New York. It authorizes the secretary to prepare and provide for such resumption of specie payments by use of any surplus revenues not otherwise appropriated and by issuing in his discretion certain classes of bonds. More than one and a half of four years have passed and Congress and the President have continued ever since to unite in acts which have legislated out of existence every possible surplus applicable to this purpose. The coin in the treasury claimed to belong to the government had on the 30th of July fallen to less than forty five millions of dollars against fifty nine millions on the 1st of July, 1875, and the availability of part of the sum is said to be questionable. The revenues are falling faster than appropriations and expenditures are reduced leaving the treasury with diminishing resources. The secretary has done nothing under his power to issue bonds. The legislative command and the official promises fixing a day of resumption have been made, but there has been no economy in the operations of the government. The homely maxims of every day life are the best standard of its conduct. A debtor who should promise to pay a loan out of a surplus income yet be seen every day spending all he could lay his hands on in riotous living would lose all character for honesty and his offer of a new promise, or his profession as to the value of old promises would alike provoke derision. The St Louis platform denounces the failure for eleven years to make good the promises of the legal tender notes. It denounces the omission to accumulate any reserve for their redemption. It denounces the conduct which during eleven years of peace, has made no advance toward resumption, no preparation for resumption but instead, has obstructed resumption by wasting our resources and exhausting all our surplus income, and while professing to intend speedily to resume specie payments has annually enacted fresh hindrances thereto and having first denounced the baseness of a promise of a day of resumption it next denounces that barren promise as a hindrance to resumption. It then demands its repeal, and also demands the establishment of a judicious system of preparation for resumption. It cannot be doubted that the substitution of a system of preparation without promise of a day for the worthless promise of a day, without a system of preparation, would be the gain of the substance of resumption, in exchange for its shadow. Nor is denunciation unmerited of that improvidence which in the eleven years since peace which has consumed forty five thousand million dollars and yet could not afford to give the people a sound and stable currency. Two and a half per cent of the expenditure of these eleven years or less would have provided all the additional coin needful to resumption. The distress now felt by the people in all their business industries though it has its principal cause in the enormous waste of capital occasioned by the false policies of our government, has been greatly aggravated by mismanagement of the currency. Uncertainty is the prolific parent of mischief in all business. Never were its evils more felt than now. Men do nothing because they are unable to make any calculations on which they can safely rely, they undertake nothing because they are at a loss in every thing they would attempt. They stop and wish. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customers. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay, he shuts his factory and discharges his workmen, capitalists cannot lend on security they do not consider safe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men with enterprise who have creditors to pledge will not borrow. Consumption has fallen below the natural limits of reasonable economy. Prices of many things are under the range of the frugal specie payment times before the civil war. Vast masses of currency lie in hands unused. A year and a half ago legal tenders were at their largest volume and $12,000,000 since retired have been replaced by fresh issues of $100,000,000 of bank notes. In the meantime, banks have been surrendering about four millions per month because they can not find profitable use for so many of their notes. The public mind will no longer accept shams. It has suffered enough from illusions in an insincere policy which increases distrust and an unstable policy which increases uncertainty. The people need to know that the government is moving in a direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent and safe conservative methods which will be sure to inflict no new distress on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new hope and well founded confidence will hasten restoring the prices of natural and prosperity will begin to return. The St. Louis convention concluded its expression in regard to the currency bill by the declaration of its convictions as to the practical results of the system of preparations. We believe such a system well devised and above all intrusted to competent hands for execution creating at no time an artificial scarcity of currency and at no time alarming the public mind into a withdrawal of that vast machinery of credit by which 95 per cent of all business transactions are performed—a system open to the public and inspiring general confidence—would from the day of its adoption bring healing on its wings to all our harassed industries set in motion the wheels of commerce, manufactories and mechanic arts, restore employment to labor, and renew in all its natural sources the prosperity of the people. The government of the United States in my opinion can advance to the resumption of specie payment on its legal notes by gradual and the processes, tending to relieve the present business distress. If charged by the people with administration of the Executive office, I should deem it my duty to so exercise the powers with which it has been or may be invested by Congress so as best and soonest to conduct the country to that beneficent result.

The convention justly affirms that reform is necessary in the civil service, necessary to its purification, necessary to its economy and efficiency, necessary in order that the ordinary employment of the public business may not be the prize fought for at the ballot box, the brief reward of party zeal instead of posts of honor assigned for proved competency and held for fidelity in public employ. The convention wisely allowed that reform is necessary even more in the higher grades of public service. The President, Vice President, Judges, Senators, Representatives, Cabinet officers and all others in authority are not a private property, but they are public trusts. Two evils infest the official service of the federal government. One is the prevalent and demoralizing notion that the public service exists not for the business and benefit of the whole people, but for the interest of the office holders, who, in truth, are but the servants of the people. Under the influence of this pernicious error, public employments have been multiplied, and the number of those gathered into the ranks of the office holders have been steadily increased beyond any possible requirement of the public service; while inefficiency, speculation, fraud and maladministration in public business, from the highest to the lowest places of power, have overspread the whole service like a leprosy. The other evil is the organization of the official class into a body of political mercenaries, governing caucuses and directing the nominations of their own party, and attempting to carry the elections of the people by undue influence and, by an immense corruption fund, systematically collected from the salaries and fees of office holders. The official class in other countries, sometimes by its own weight and sometimes in alliance with the army, has been able to rule unconcerned masses, even under universal suffrage. Here it has already grown into a gigantic power, capable of stifling the sound public opinion, of resisting an easy change of administration, until misgovernment becomes intolerable and public spirit has been stung to the pitch of civil revolution. The first step in reform is an elevation of the standard by which the appointing power selects agents to execute official trust. Not less in importance is a conscientious fidelity in the exercise of the authority so hold to account and displace subordinates. The public interests in an honest and skillful performance of official trust must not be sacrificed to the usufruct of incumbents. After these first steps, which will insure the exhibition of better examples, we may wisely go on to the abolition of unnecessary offices, and finally, by a patient and careful organization of a better civil service system, under test, wherever practicable, of proved competency and fidelity. While much may be accomplished by these methods it might encourage delusive expectations if I were to withhold here an expression of my conviction that no reform of civil service in this country will be complete, and permanent, until its chief magistrate is constitutionally disqualified for re-election, experience having repeatedly exposed the futility of self-imposed restrictions by candidates or incumbents, no matter what may be their solemnity. In this way the President can be effectually delivered from his great temptation to misuse that power and patronage with which the Executive is necessarily charged. Educated in the belief that it is the first duty of a citizen of the Republic to take his fair allotment, care and trouble in public affairs, I have for forty years, as a private citizen, fulfilled that duty and though occupied in an unusual [illegible], during all that period with [illegible] employment, I have never acquired the habit of official life. When a year and half ago I entered on my present trust, it was in order to consummate reforms to which I had already devoted several years of my life. Knowing as I do, therefore, from fresh experience, how much the difference is [illegible] going through an official routine and working out reforms of systems and policies it is impossible for me to contemplate what needs to be done in the Federal administration without an anxious sense of the difficulties of the undertaking. If summoned by the suffrages of my countrymen to attempt this work, I shall endeavor with God's help, to be the efficient instrument of their will.

SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

PRESS COMMENTS ON THE LETTERS OF ACCEPTANCE.

NEW YORK EVENING POST.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The Evening Post says of Governor Tilden's letter of acceptance, it is an able and careful document, showing that familiarity with his subject which one of patient study and large experience. The ends which Governor Tilden keeps in view will be everywhere assented to. The differences will occur upon the means by which he proposes to secure these ends. The country has been studying the Democratic party since the political revolution in the States in 1874 put it partly into power, and the course of the party has not been such as to encourage any more faith in it than the country has paid for during the last sixteen years. It is doubtful whether Governor Hendricks, in attempting to satisfy both parties, has satisfied either. His letter avowed a hearty desire to return to specie payments, the soft money men, if they are honest, cannot be satisfied with this. It favors an unconditional repeal of the resumption pledge, the hard-money men ought not to be satisfied with this. Governor Hendricks is opposed to artificial measures for the contraction of the currency, but Governor Tilden has inclined to contraction. Governor Hendricks' views of civil service are just. We may doubt whether Democrats will do what Governor Hendricks tells them to do, but the advice is not the less sound for that reason.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says it looks as if there had been a conflict of cross purposes between Tilden and Hendricks and between the hard and soft money Democrats on the financial question, and that Hendricks has beaten Tilden, who relied on the dead lock in the banking committee of Congress to prevent the amendment of the resumption act. It intimates that Goode, of Virginia, was dishonestly and unjustly admitted to the seat he contested in expectation that he would strengthen the hard money Democrats in the banking committee, but he betrayed them finally by his surrender to the softs, and instantly Tilden issued his letter. This simultaneousness amounts to more than coincidence. The Tribune charges Hendricks' letter as a very bitter, narrow, offensive partisan document. Nothing could be in worse taste than the small partizanship, low demagogism with which he has seen fit to discuss the political situation. The points he makes and dwells upon are those only which appeal to the instincts of the demagogue and the passions and prejudices of the mob. There is no attempt at philosophic treatment or calm discussion. He rattles off the reasons for his political belief in the manner of a backwood's stump orator, without coherence, logic or sense. While all through it runs such a strain of denunciation and abuse of political opponents as would be hardly deemed decent in the loose courtesies of an oral debate. He comes out strong for the repeal of the resumption clause, and in the earnestness with which he talks discloses a wide difference between his views and those held by his chief. He manifests throughout the whole document the temper of a disappointed man and the determination to make himself and his notion conspicuous, whether agreeable to other people or not. It is by all odds the weakest political document of the present campaign.

The Tribune says of Tilden's letter: His main points are reform in public expenditures, the condition of the South, resumption and civil service reform. It would be idle to deny that on these points his positions are for the most part strongly and ably sustained. With much that he says under each head a large majority of his political opponents will agree. His remarks on the necessity of all the reforms referred to will meet universal approval. Hendricks' letter, on the contrary, is classed by the Tribune as a narrow, offensive party document.

THE TIMES.

The Times this morning editorially says it is now evident that the long delay in publishing the letters of the Democratic candidates was due to an effort on Tilden's part to bring Hendricks to an accord with some decent statement of hard money views. That effort has failed signally, not only so, but the partial harmony which has finally been secured comes from a surrender on Tilden's part of the kernal of difference between them, in the repudiation of the resumption act. That is and has long been the objective point of the paper men. They do not expect to get repudiation in any other form nor would it be as useful to them. The pledge to resume must be got out of the way at all hazards. They do not expect either to secure any inflation of the currency at present. Both the Senate and President stand in the way of that, and they know that even if these obstacles were removed the resumption act, if it remains, would block all their game.

The writer says that Tilden was scared on the money question. He not only did not avoid the repudiation [illegible], but argued elaborately in its favor. He [illegible] the [illegible] deceitful language of the St. Louis platform, and denounced the pledge given by the government as a snare and a delusion. He [illegible] ed at it as an official promise, the pledge being the Congress and President of the United States which is duly authorized, are, by the constitution explicitly declared to be the supreme law of the land. The cloak under which Tilden seeks to hide his shameful advocacy of repudiation is the pretense that the promise cannot be kept.

The Times says the best commentary on Tilden's theory of civil service reform is found in his [illegible] and [illegible] to show the [illegible] of his judicial and other appointments. It also shows how he has for months past [illegible] his own [illegible] and [illegible] selves for the promotion of his nomination into [illegible] what he [illegible]. In the placer mines on Myrtle creek, last week, a miner named Spick took out $35 with a rocker. The dirt was obtained by drifting and Mr. Spick was hindered somewhat in his work owing to the scarcity of water. Could sluices be put up and plenty of water obtained, the claim would yield from $20 to $40 per day to the hand. It is perhaps the most valuable claim on Myrtle creek.

On Thursday of last week Judge Willis of Roseburg made thirty different assays of average rock taken from the four-foot vein in the Lucky Queen mine. The assays ran from nothing up to $600, and it was demonstrated that the rock would average at least $30 to the ton by common mill [illegible]. The average assay of rock was $40 to the ton. With such rock, and the cost of reducing it amounting to only $5 per ton, the Lucky Queen is a valuable prize to its owners.

The Daily Oregonian.

MONDAY MORNING AUGUST 7 1876

AT LAST

At last the country has an opportunity to see what Messrs Tilden and Hendricks have to say on the political situation. It would naturally be expected that papers emanating from such high authority after so extended a period of incubation would be something prodigious. But on inspecting these letters of acceptance somewhat carefully, we fail to discover anything in them which might not have been produced as well after a few hours as after the protracted labor through which the distinguished individuals have passed, unless it be the enormous length of Tilden's letter. There is nothing new or striking in either of the letters, except the ingenious manner in which both shuttle through the financial question, Hendricks making it appear as clear as mud that his soft-money views coincide exactly with the views of the hard money Democrats, and Tilden making it appear equally clear that his hard-money views coincide exactly with the views of the soft-money Democrats. On this subject they both justify the country in placing them as high in the rank of logicians as Captain Bunsby, who could always give "an opinion as is an opinion." Mr Tilden gives utterance to a curious fact in connection with the one-term subject. Hayes having expressly pledged himself not to be a candidate for a second term in case of his election, it became necessary in view of the manifest sentiment of the country on that subject, for Tilden to set his sails to catch the breeze, and so he declared himself in favor of the one term principle; but with an eye to future contingencies and a lawyer-like shrewdness, he cautions the country against believing anything that he or any other politician may say about being a candidate for re-election, because, in his view, the temptation will be too great to be resisted by poor human nature and the most solemn pledge will snap asunder like a rope of sand whenever the opportunity for re-election presents itself. Mr Tilden probably judges others by himself, and knowing just how little his pledge would amount to in such a case, concludes no man's pledge would be binding. This announcement of Mr. Tilden's that he is a candidate for a second election would scarcely be considered excessively modest even after his first election was secured; and being made at the outset of his first campaign, and when the chances are decidedly against his ever being placed in a position where a second term would be possible, it must be regarded much in the same light as the meditations of a certain spinster mentioned in the old spelling books, concerning the most suitable color for the new gown she was going to buy with the money she would get for the butter she would make from the milk in the pail she carried. Is Mr Tilden in no danger of becoming, like the spinster, so absorbed in his far-reaching speculations for the future that he will stumble and spill the milk over his present official gown and at the same time dash his hopes for the new one?

But in the main it must be conceded that Hendricks' letter is a passable performance, and Tilden's as good as the substance of it, attenuated beyond all reason, could have been made. Had he boiled it down to half a column or so, thus relieving it of the interminable maze of verbiage by which the points are obscured, it would be a very creditable production, considering the "tight place" in which he stands on account of the diverse and contradictory sentiments of his party on the vital questions of the time. Perhaps, however, this labyrinth of words is a judicious device of Mr Tilden's to avoid making his points sufficiently clear to arouse the opposition of the class of Democrats with which he is not in accord—whichever class that may be.

OUR INDIAN POLICY

The San Francisco Bulletin of recent date has an exceedingly well considered criticism of the Indian policy, which, instead of individualizing the Indians, giving them incentives to labor, surrounding them with only such restraints as are necessary to their protection, and making them amenable individually to the laws of the country, deals with them in their tribal character only, feeds and clothes them in gangs, and makes treaties with them as if they were foreign nationalities. Labor, good honest labor, says the Bulletin, is the greatest civilizing agency. If we would civilize the Indian we must put him to work in some way. He must cease to be a vagabond and a pauper kept by the government and become a man. He must be shown the way and the necessity of taking care of himself. There are thousands of white men who would soon lapse into a savage state if they were released from all work. In fact the white savage of great cities may be a more cruel and bloodthirsty fellow. But he differs from the Indian in this, that ignorant as the former may be, he is amenable to law. If he steals he is sent to prison; if he murders he is hung, provided a jury can be found to render an honest verdict. The Indian so long as he is an almoner of the Government as "the ward of the nation" will be just about what he has been. Our [illegible] humanitarian sentiments will go for little. He is the tramp who is better off than the white vagrants by so much as the government has done for him in the way of [illegible] giving blankets, rations and [illegible]

"We [illegible] society together by the hard hands of work. Millions of men must [illegible] famine and death will [illegible] them. They were born to this [illegible] of labor. Was the Indian born to a better condition that he should [illegible] disdain for all productive labor? It is a charity [illegible] but remove it and the condition of a vast majority of the human race would be much worse. What the Indian needs most of all is to be put in the harness. If he dies in it, that will be no worse for him than for millions who [illegible] no better fate. But a good strong work harness will do him good. It will moderate the wildness of his nature and subdue the [illegible] levity of his spirit. Sitting Bull just now is a remote sort of a savage. But Sitting Bull, getting his living by the sweat of his brow, might yet become a decent sort of a fellow citizen."

That has been the policy of the English government in dealing with the Indians. They have neither been put through the army extermination mill as some of our statesmen recommend, nor herded together like a lot of irresponsible tribes, and at the same time treated as subjects of a foreign and friendly power. In avoiding this absurd and contradictory manner of dealing with the Indians England has likewise avoided most of the misunderstandings and bloody wars into which our country has fallen by reason of what the Indians have considered bad faith in our treaty relations. Public sentiment is pointing in the right direction when the demand is made for a policy which recognizes larger individual rights and responsibilities in the Indians.

The dorey Centennial has been spoken at sea. The Centennial is not more than 19 feet long and about 5 feet beam. She sailed for England a short time ago with a crew of two men and a supply of cooked provisions. The boldness of the men who have undertaken this perilous voyage is undeniable, but this exhibition of it is not to be commended. However little men may value their lives they have no right to incur danger unnecessarily. There are times when personal considerations should be laid aside, and imminent peril incurred without hesitating, but to do so without cause is foolish and sinful.

It seems that in making war on Turkey Servia undertook more than she was capable of managing successfully. Turkey appears to be getting the best of the struggle. Servia counted on the aid of Russia, and there is but little reason to doubt that Russia would have aided her, if England had not so clearly indicated her purpose to maintain the integrity of Turkish territory in case it should be endangered. According to the latest news Servia is quite as ready to make peace now, as she was a short time ago to make war.

Tilden and Hendricks both say resumption of specie payment is very desirable but that the Republicans have adopted no adequate measure for that purpose. Why do not they suggest what measure would be adequate? They seem at no loss to see the defect in the law of 1875, but they fail to inform the country particularly wherein the defect consists or what can be done to remedy it. That looks very much like demagoguery.

Mr Luttrell, Democratic Representative, according to Sergeant-at-Arms Ordway was sent as a member of a committee to Alabama. On his return he charged as part of his expenses, to be paid for by the government, the cost of a visit to some of his friends or relatives in Tennessee, which goes to show that "reform is needed in all branches of the public service" as the Democratic platform declares.

According to Mr Matt Carpenter, Mr Belknap did not know Mrs Belknap was receiving money from Mr Marsh. Mr Carpenter says Mrs. Belknap had a seperate estate, and Mr Belknap, like a spooney and over sensitive young husband, avoided inquiry about her money affairs, lest she should think he had been after her "ducats" instead of herself.

While some Democratic members of the House were hesitating how to vote on the bill repealing the resumption act they wrote to Mr Tilden for advice, and promised to vote accordingly. One line from him would have prevented the passage of the bill, but Mr Tilden did not write it, and the hesitating members voted for the bill and it passed.

It is reported that the explosion of the English iron clad Thunderer's boiler was caused by gross carelessness. It is said that when the boiler which exploded was tested hydrostatically, the escape valves were wedged down, that the wedges were never taken out and the boiler exploded in consequence.

NECESSITY FOR A NEW JUDICIAL DISTRICT

OREGON CITY, Aug 1 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Allow me, through your columns to call the attention of the legislature which is soon to meet to a subject which commends itself to their favorable examination. I refer to the necessity which exists for the creation of a new judicial district, or if that is found to be inadvisable, to the redistricting of the State in such a manner as to lighten the onerous labors of the judge of the fourth district. This district is now composed of Multnomah, Clackamas, Washington, Columbia and Clatsop counties. The result is that the judge of this district is almost constantly on the bench, and is compelled to hurry through the business of the courts in what your people are pleased to term the outside counties, in order to get back to Portland to hold some special term for the transaction of important business which could not be reached at a regular session. This is unjust to the judge for the reason that it does not allow him sufficient time for the consideration of important questions before he is compelled to render a decision. It is also unjust to litigants for the same reason, frequently requiring the taking of appeals to the Supreme Court, which might have been avoided had the circuit judge been allowed ample time for a thorough examination of all the questions involved. This is notably the fact in cases where a large amount of written testimony is to be considered. We are fortunate in having an able, pains taking judge who has left a lucrative practice at the bar to undertake the laborious duties of an overworked bench at a salary far less valuable than his practice, because the people demanded it. Under the circumstances they should at least be just to him, if not generous. But it is useless to urge the reasons for some change. They have long been recognized by bench and bar, and such of the laity as are brought into contact with our courts. Multnomah county alone furnishes more work for the circuit judge than does any other entire district in the State. It should be a district by itself, but if either Clackamas or Clatsop and Columbia counties should be added it would be vastly better than it is now. I should be glad to see some suggestions on this subject from members of the bar and others of the different counties interested.

CITY.

SMALLPOX—DELIRIOUS LEAP.—Yesterday about 12 o'clock residents of East Portland, in the vicinity of the City Hotel, were thrown into a state of great excitement, the cause being the circumstance of a man leaping into the river while laboring under a fit of delirium. The facts connected with the exciting incident are as follows: A drayman, who [illegible] in East Portland, named Richard Nichols, was taken sick a few days ago, and Saturday the physician in attendance pronounced the disease smallpox. Nichols was occupying a room in the City Hotel and when they who were waiting upon him found out he had that loathesome disease they were afraid to remain in the same apartment. Yesterday the patient began to break out, causing him to become delirious from the high fever. While thus left unattended Nichols leaped from a window in the second story to the ground and running to the brink of the river plunged in head first. Several persons who saw the [illegible] jump from the window and start toward the water surmised the object and gave pursuit; but Nichols reached the river first, and leaping in sank from view. An alarm was given and a large crowd collected in a few [illegible] As might be expected great excitement prevailed and some moments elapsed before a boat could be procured. At length a skiff was obtained, and two men [illegible] out to [illegible] the man. The place was [illegible] Nichols had sprang into the river, and fortunately he was found floating just beneath the surface. He was drawn [illegible] in an unconscious condition and [illegible] to his room. The disease is pronounced to be of a severe type, but with careful [illegible] the patient might have [illegible] is to be hoped now that Nichols can be [illegible] through safely after [illegible] exposed to cold water as he was yesterday. We understand that up to noon yesterday no arrangements had been made by the health authorities of East Portland for the isolation of this [illegible] Ere this no doubt, the marshal has secured quarters where the patient will be [illegible] and carefully provided for. [illegible] informed has been stopping in Powell's valley until within a short time, and is at a loss to know where he was exposed to the [illegible]

FROM KALAMAZOO.—A [illegible] of the OREGONIAN residing at Kalamazoo, Michigan, sends the following under date of July [illegible]: "The weather is very [illegible] Harvesting is about done, and the threshing will be commenced next [illegible], but if we [illegible] to have some more rain [illegible] would do better. Early sown oats are now being cut, but that sown later will not be ripe yet a while. New potatoes have been bringing $1 a [illegible], but are selling for only fifty [illegible] There are lots of huckleberries [illegible] market. They are selling for [illegible] from the grocery stores. Professor and Clara Baldwin will present their entertainment especially for children, entitled, "An Afternoon with the Spirits" at the New Market Theatre on next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The admission will be 25c for children and 50c for adults. This will be joyful tidings for the little ones and the ladies, since to them matinees in Portland come like angels' visits, few and far between. The Baldwins will make the afternoon pass merrily and will [illegible] the [illegible] which will undoubtedly be very large.

Upon Thursday evening Prof. Baldwin will give his final performance in this city, as he sails for San Francisco in the [illegible] on the following day. His programme for this [illegible] will be entirely new and different in every respect from those presented upon his visit here last week. It will embrace spirit rappings, table tippings, the wonderful independent slate writing of Dr Slade of New York City, the shouting at spirit faces as they appear at the cabinet window and will conclude with the extremely ludicrous feats in mesmerism as performed by Annie de Montfort. The performance and explanation of these tests will elicit much laughter. Especially funny are the mesmeric tricks during which the most ludicrous capers are cut by the committee on the stage who are mesmerized by Prof Baldwin. Reserved seats at Gray's and Pfunder's.

An afternoon with the spirits—an entertainment for children—only 25 cents, adults 50 cents.

At length a skiff was obtained and two men started out to rescue the man. The place was soon reached where Nichols had sprang into the river, and fortunately he was found floating just beneath the surface. He was drawn ashore in an unconscious condition and conveyed back to his room. The disease is pronounced to be of a severe type but with careful treatment the patient might have recovered. It is scarcely to be hoped now that Nichols can be brought through safely after being exposed to cold water as he was yesterday. We understand that up to noon yesterday no arrangements had been made by the health authorities of East Portland for the isolation of this case. Ere this no doubt the marshal has secured quarters where the patient will be removed and carefully provided for. Nichols, we are informed has been stopping in Powell's valley until within a short time, and is at a loss to know where he was exposed to the disease.

FROM KALAMAZOO — A regular subscriber of the OREGONIAN residing at Kalamazoo, Michigan, sends the following under date of July 29th: The weather is very warm at present. Harvesting is about done, and threshing will be commenced next week but if we were to have some more rain corn would do better. Early sown oats are now being cut but that sown later will not be ripe yet a while. New potatoes have been bringing $1 a bushel but are selling for only fifty cents at present. There are lots of huckleberries coming into market; they are selling for 25 cents a bushel from the grocery stores. Butter is very cheap, bringing only a shilling a pound. We cannot tell at present what new wheat will bring. There has been no threshing done here as yet. I think we will have hot weather for sometime to come, as we had a south wind when summer commenced and many persons say that when we have the wind south on that day we will have hot weather most of the time for three months.

PASSENGERS COMING — The steamer Ajax sailed for Portland from San Francisco Saturday morning having on board the following passengers: Ed C Hughes, Mrs S E Baizley, Miss F Sewell, Dudley Evans, Fred S Pott, J W Yarndly, E W Moore, H S Hollingsworth, C M Russell, G R Ward, G H Forness, Rev J H Acton and family, G F Cole, J Strause, L G Clark, Miss M C Hustler, W J Beatty, J W Lincoln, J F Dillon, Miss R Everlin, N Hass, R F Read, H Patton and wife, B R Canthorn and family, C W Shively and family, F M Martin, C Woodington, E Woodington and family, M G Sobrenes and family, E F Thompson, J Williamson, J Camp and family, Mrs L A Sanford, Mrs F A Hutchins, J P Ward and wife.

BOUND FOR SHOALWATER — Last evening promptly at 8 o'clock, the steamship Gussie Telfair left her wharf bound for Shoalwater Bay, having on board the following excursionists: Frank T Dodge, J F Miller, Oscar I Clay, L Harmon, Capt John Harlow, E H Stolte, Geo W Pittock, Mrs Sanborn, Miss Mancie, H B Sanborn, Ike Blum, Miss N Kearney, Jno O Connor, Ed Holman, Mrs Holman, W Axford, Mrs Axford and four children, Miss C Cadwell, H L Ash, H McCollan, Mark A King, Jno LaChapelle, A Goodnough, D A Cronin, Chas E Bray, John Roos, Thos Parrott, C Parrish, Col Hardenbergh, Chas Griswold, A J Knott, B F Holmes.

CARD FROM DR. DODD

ASTORIA, Aug 5, 1876

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I see it reported by to-day's OREGONIAN that a case of smallpox was found among the Chinese passengers on board the John L Stephens on her arrival last evening. I visited the ship on the morning of the same day on her arrival at this port, and all on board was reported well by the captain and officers. To have made this discovery almost immediately after leaving this port I think shows neglect of duty at least on the part of the officers in charge in not reporting to me as required by law.

Please give this insertion in your paper and oblige. Yours respectfully,

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES

A little Indian girl, a niece to Kittle the Siwash banker fell into the bay on the west side of Olympia on Wednesday evening, and was drowned.

Two small children of G W Lance of Foot's creek, Jackson county fell into a fire the other day and were quite seriously burned before being rescued.

Young Skykomish Doctor, an Indian, was stabbed in the neck and killed at Mukilteo July 23d by a Duwamish Indian who made his escape through the woods.

A young man 22 years old claiming the name of Charley Ross was arrested and plead guilty to the larceny of $32 from a restaurant keeper at The Dalles last week.

John Sweet of Snohomish who is engaged as logger in the logging camp of Pickering Bros was injured by falling timber having his right leg badly crushed between the ankle and knee, the bone protruding through the wound.

David Dickinson was pretty badly hurt on the 1st from a fall off the staging in the ship yard at Seabeck, a 5 inch plank falling on his neck and shoulders. Another man by the name of McClelland a sail maker had his right arm broken on Monday.

Mr Farrell a second boss on the railroad near Drain's station was assaulted by four Chinese workmen and severely beaten and bruised up last Friday. One of the Chinese a little over a year ago drew a pistol on a man at Wilbur and tried to whip another party at Oakland a short time after and is reported to be a desperate character.

The Salem Statesman says: "On returning from the mountain excursion on Wednesday night a little four-year old son of A N Gilbert met with a severe accident. Near the camp for the night the child climbed on a pile of lumber which fell upon him almost killing him. The child is slowly improving but the lower limbs are still helpless."

The Albany Democrat says: "On Wednesday last the 2d inst while a number of children were playing near a pile of sawdust that had been set on fire near the site of an old saw mill close to Lebanon a little daughter of James Edwards of Sodaville aged 8 years was badly burned. She with other children were running over the pile which was apparently safe but all a mass of coals underneath when the crust gave way letting her fall in upon the heated mass and before she made her escape her legs and feet were literally roasted her toe nails falling off."

The Dallas Reporter says that on Thursday of last week Monroe Burford and wife with Mrs Nash and daughter went to the mountains to gather blackberries, and sometime during the day the team two colts became unmanageable and ran away somewhere near Hallock's mill throwing all hands from the wagon. They were all more or less hurt but Mrs. Nash was severely hurt so much so that Dr Doane was sent for. At first it was thought her back was broken but on examination it was found to be erroneous. At last accounts all were doing well.

Last week was a week of accidents at Coos Bay. A man named McDougal was hit on the leg by a dog while hauling logs out of the boom to the mill at Empire Monday and his leg slightly fractured. James Welsh employed in the sawmill of Simpson Bros at Gardiner, received a frightful wound in the hand on Friday by the breaking of the saw. Charles Abrahum, one of the workmen employed in building the new schooner at Gardiner had his left arm broken on Thursday. Jimmy oldest son of Hon D L Watson had the misfortune to dislocate his wrist. Sheriff Aiken got kicked on the arm and one side of the head while trying to mount a vicious horse in Empire City and was seriously hurt.

One of the saddest occurrences it has ever been our lot to chronicle, says the Roseburg Independent of the 5th inst occurred last Tuesday on the North Umpqua, near Lorenzo's place resulting in the death of a mother and two sons, the wife and children of Mr W Wheeler. Mr Wheeler had gone to Oakland to purchase some flour and about the time his wife expected his return she with her children (five little boys), went down to the boatlanding there to await his arrival. As was natural the children began playing chasing each other up and down the bank of the stream and while thus engaged one of them aged six years slipped into the water. The child's cry of distress was answered by another brother of 16, who sprung into the river without a moment's hesitation. He caught the drowning child as it came to the surface a second time and started for the shore. At this juncture Mrs Wheeler who was wildly excited started to wade out into the stream on a shelving rock and she too slipped into deep water and began to drown. The brave and noble boy who first went to the rescue now became a hero. With a love in his heart for his mother that knew no bounds he let go his brother and tried to save her whom he loved best. But he was already too much exhausted to be of service and when she came up the third time he caught her by the arm and both sank to rise no more. The other boy went to the bottom when first released and of course was drowned. While this terrible struggle for life was going on in the water two of the children ran up and down the bank screaming for help that never came. The third procured a boat and tried to help but he failed to do any good. All they could do was done and that was to wait until their father returned and break to him the terrible news. Search for the bodies was commenced as soon as possible and by the aid of grappling hooks they were found Wednesday at 9 o'clock A M not far from where they had fallen in.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Two cases of smallpox are reported at Victoria.

Owing to sickness Admiral Hancock (H M S Repulse) and family are going to England.

At Inverness below Wrangel the salmon are running freely and the fishing companies there are busy canning them.

General complaint is made on the mainland of the manner in which road work is being carried on by the government.

The steamer North Pacific having been fitted out and extensively repaired was launched at Victoria on the 1st.

The owner of ticket No 141 won $500 in gold coin on Thursday evening last in Lovett's great raffle and the owner of ticket No [illegible] won a handsome [illegible] tape piano.

Paymaster Millman of H M S Repulse has fallen among the numerous victims of that dire disease smallpox which has recently caused so many deaths on the flagship.

The steamer Grappler is still on the rocks above Victoria. The canals are under her stern and it is thought [illegible] of raising her successfully. A [illegible] from the southeast is the greatest danger to be apprehended.

The Wide West hydraulic claim on Williams Creek owned by Mr Louis Wintrip is yielding 100 ounces per day. It is said that the Williams Creek Detroit Flume Co, will also pay well this season.

Mr A C Elder C E [illegible] reports that on the 10th July when descending Salmon river the canoe carrying himself and others swamped and that a man named Isaac Houch of Hunter's party was drowned.

The Nanaimo Free Press gives the following account of the reported drowning of six men near Departure Bay: Several Indians arrived at Newcastle on Saturday last and reported that the previous day they saw a dark boat [illegible] containing six or seven men capsize in the gulf about [illegible] north of Departure Bay [illegible] precipitated them into the water and all were drowned. From the description the boat belongs to Mr Sage and was laden [illegible] of six men from W [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the Qualicum river. They left that place a week ago [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE TERRITORIES

The work at Cape Flattery lighthouse is completed.

A pack train of eight animals left Seattle last week for Ellensburg, Kittitas valley.

A saw and a grist mill are soon to be built near Snohomish City.

The Old Kentuck on her last trip from Wrangel brought down $10 000 in gold dust and 80 passengers.

There are seven prisoners in the United States penitentiary at McNeil's Island near Steilacoom.

We learn that the Democratic Territorial convention will be called to meet at Vancouver about the first of next month.

The Democrats of King county W T have called their primaries on the 19th inst and their county convention on the 26th.

Miss Hattie Skinkle the young lady typo who recently left this city for Arizona has been appointed telegraph operator in the signal service at Prescott.

The following is a summary of the business transacted in the land office at Vancouver during the month of July: Original homestead entries [illegible] aggregate acres 981; final homestead entries 12, aggregate acres 1 [illegible]; declaratory statements [illegible] aggregate acres [illegible]; one commuted homestead claim.

James Barron an unfortunate old man who has been about Vancouver for some time past was brought before Judge Gunder last week on a charge of insanity. A number of witnesses were examined and Drs Elton and Donavan were appointed by the court to examine the patient. He was formally adjudged insane.

The Steilacoom Express says: "Cultus Joe" an Indian well known about Steilacoom who committed a brutal outrage on an aged white lady living some miles back from this town has not been captured by the officers. An Indian was brought here from Puyallup supposed to be Joe but after reaching the county jail he was set at liberty. The authorities should offer a reward for the apprehension of the scamp otherwise we are afraid he will escape the punishment he richly deserves.

The Olympia Transcript says: The fifteen mile section of the Seattle and Walla Walla railroad is being pushed with considerable rapidity. On Surber's contract across the bay 7 000 feet of piles have been driven and capped. On Eaton and Webster's contract, in the Duwamish valley 1 000 feet of trestle work has been completed. The contract for completing the grade of the road bed ready for ties and superstructure was recently let to Mr H L Yesler who has already finished up in good style 2 000 feet of the worst part of it.

The Watchman says: Bennet Pearson who formerly lived on the Coper something over a year ago started for Indiana with a band of horses. Among them was a span of very fine mares valued at $400. He reached Indiana in the latter part of September. Early in October the mares disappeared from the range on which they were running and could not be found. Mr Pearson heard nothing more of his horses until he was informed by the gentleman who lives on his place on the Coper that the two mares had turned up there in the early part of last April safe and sound.

The Arizona Miner says: One of our Prescott scientists, at a set back the other day while expatiating on the geology of this region to exhibit certain certain shells picked up by a little son of Mr Banghart at Chino valley. The shells as well as the age in which they lived of the creatures which once inhabited these shells, when Chino valley was a vast sea and San Francisco mountain and the Mogollons merely islands in the waste of waters were all being figured out to an exact certainty when grandmother Peck upset all his theory and made sad havoc with science itself by remarking that she had brought those shells from Puget Sound to please the children as nothing of the kind was ever found here.

Suicide Identified.

The man who shot himself at Oakland on Monday last has been identified as Joseph Frabish, a native of San Tomisle, Prussia, formerly a merchant in this city During the last twelve months the deceased had invested heavily in stocks and his losses were large He was known to be in bad condition financially, and several of his friends offered to assist him, but being a man of very proud and independent position, he refused to accept help. It is presumed that he did not want any one to recognize him after death, because before attempting the deed he changed his attire.

Fire.

At 4 P. M. a fire broke out in the upper story of a four story brick on the S W corner of Commercial and Leidsdorf streets, occupied as the Pacific lodging house. The fire spread fast and involved the whole upper story, the flames quickly bursting through the roof The block was also occupied in the lower stories by Britton & Rey, lithographers, B McQuillan picture dealer M Short tailor and other establishments. Before the firemen got the flames under control the entire upper story and roof were destroyed, and the remainder of the building badly damaged by water The stocks on the lower floor were saved from material injury by the fire patrol

The Douglas Independent [illegible] news of our Oregon [illegible]

Some lumber young fellows of Corvallis about to organize a Turn Verein society

The contract for building a bridge across the Mohawk river will be let to the lowest bidder next Tuesday

The Spiritualists of the State will hold a camp meeting commencing September [illegible] at Rock Island [illegible] miles above Oregon City

The proprietors of the toll road over the Siskiyou mountains have raised the fare on the California stage company's toll considerably

J [illegible] Cossen has resigned as president of the Dalles and Sandy road settled up with the company and N H Gates has been elected to fill his place

The Indians have been holding a religious dance near Corvallis for the last week and have afforded a good deal of amusement to the Bostons

Fourteen bridges have been authorized to be constructed on the Astoria Nehalem road A ray of hope now strengthens the hearts of the settlers in that favored locality

One year ago the town of Sumpter Baker county consisted of a few log huts inhabited principally by the heathen Chinese now there are many new buildings up and in the course of erection

A new wharf boat will be built at Celilo about the first of October which will be 160 feet long [illegible] feet [illegible] and [illegible] in the hold It will supply the place of the wharf buildings that were lately swept away

Capt Laban Buoy an old resident of Lane county died at his residence near Cress on July 31 aged 74 years He served as captain of a company of volunteers in the Indian war of 1855-6 in Southern Oregon and was highly esteemed by all who knew him

Mr J McCarty has a force of men employed taking out sand from the gravel pit near Roseburg The sand is to be used in the large new bridge being built over the Clackamas river beyond Oregon City by the Oregon & California railroad company at a cost of $40 000

Mr Adamson of Douglas county, while walking the mountains on Deer creek the other day, sat down to rest While thus resting a deer came jumping toward Mr Adamson and was seized by his dog, who held it until his master cut its throat with a large clasp knife

We learn that legal proceedings will be instituted to establish the county seat of Lake at Bullard's creek No choice was made at the late election although Bullard's creek and Bullard's ranch together received a majority of the votes which doubtless forms the nucleus of the movement to have the county seat moved there

The Corvallis Gazette says Capt B D Boswell, having been disabled for life while in active service in the army, has been ordered before a retiring committee at San Francisco He will probably be absent several weeks Should the Captain pass the examination which he doubtless will, he will be placed upon the retired list with three fourths pay

The Democrat learns from Capt Scott, of the steamer City of Salem that the two most difficult places between Albany and Portland are at Buena Vista and at McCloskey's chute [illegible] miles below Salem At the former place there is but 17 inches of water on the shoals [illegible] place while the latter place has only about [illegible] inches with a tortuous channel of some 900 yards to run

The Eugene Journal says The board of regents for the State university held a short session on last Monday night and adjourned to the coming Tuesday evening when they will elect a full faculty for the university and appoint a day of opening We understand that exercises will commence on or about the second Monday in September as the regents have been officially informed of the acceptance by the commissioners of the building, and desire that school shall begin at once

The Pendleton paper says Yet in wa tis a brave Indian who has made several trips to the buffalo country and been shot nearly to death by the hated Sioux, applied to Clark Fay during the absence of Agent Cornoyer for the usual pass to go to the buffalo country accompanied by ten bucks or warriors and six women which of course was readily granted After the issuance of the pass, Mr Fay concluded that the Indian and his companions were desirous of going to the war instead of going to the buffalo country for the purpose of killing buffalo and trading with friendly Indians and immediately started out to find Yet in wa tis but the brave could not be found he had gone This Indian having been so thoroughly imbued with hatred of the Sioux by being so thoroughly shot by them will if he safely reaches Crook's or Terry's command with pleasure raise the scalp of every Sioux taken in battle

The Albany Democrat says Harmon Swank, who resides near Brownsville was found dead in the mountains near Moose Lake last Wednesday evening the 2d inst. He in company with James B Kenney and son went into the lake several days previous through an obscure trail for the purpose of gathering blackberries fishing hunting etc On the day mentioned above they left camp in the morning for the purpose of gathering berries Some distance from their headquarters they discovered a large patch of the article and commenced picking While thus engaged Mr Swank became separated from his friends and was not seen by them again until several hours later when they accidently came upon his dead body The body was brought out to Wilhoit's soda springs on Thursday but no medical examination had been held up to the time our informant left to ascertain the cause of his sudden decease

DR. JAYNE'S AGUE MIXTU[illegible]

A CERTAIN AND EFFECTUAL REM[illegible]

FOR

Fever and Ague, Intermi[illegible] and Remittent Fever, &c

This class of diseases so common in [illegible] of the World, and especially prevalent [illegible] malarious districts and vicinage of water [illegible] are almost invariably accompanied by [illegible] less derangement of the liver and [illegible] by a defective action of the digestive [illegible]

The mere breaking of the Chill is [illegible] towards completing a radical cure [illegible] organs of the body, especially the [illegible] liver, must be brought to a healthy [illegible] ous condition before a permanent cure [illegible] established and this fact has been [illegible] kept in view by Dr Jayne in his treatment [illegible] these complaints. The use of Jayne's Ague Mixture, in conjunction with Jayne's [illegible] Pills as prescribed in the Directions [illegible] accompany each bottle will not only

but restore the system, more particularly [illegible] liver and stomach, to a sound condition [illegible] prevent a relapse of Fever and Ague [illegible] oughly and the best evidence of this is the [illegible] success which has always followed the [illegible] istration of these remedies, as attested [illegible] certificates published annually in Dr [illegible] Almanac, and the wide-spread popularity [illegible] Ague Mixture in those districts of the [illegible] States, where the diseases, for which [illegible] adapted, most prevail.

ERADICATING THE DISEA[illegible]

Chicago Wheat Market

CHICAGO Aug [illegible]—The past week has been an eventful one in the grain market Cash wheat closed to day at 89½c against 96¼c last Saturday Cash and future prices have been gradually approaching each other which indicates that the prospects for a rise in the near future do not seem good. At the same time there is a firmer tone to the market. There is no appearance of panic. Confidence in the condition of elevator wheat is reported, and the coming crop will probably not be as large as the first harvest weather and anticipations have warranted [illegible] Wheat cannot be shipped from here with any certainty of fair returns and were it not for exceedingly and unprecedentedly low freights to New York prices would rule considerably lower than now Farmers are busy securing their grain and accurate returns can hardly be expected for some weeks though various reports are circulated on change by the various interests.

The Prospect of Adjournment

It is the general opinion that if Congress does adjourn this week it will not be until the latter part The conference committee on legislative executive and judicial appropriations bill will soon come to an agreement The House will, it is said, recede ultimately from its proposition to transfer the Indian bureau to the War Department, so that the only bill about which there is contemplated trouble is the consular and diplomatic no effective step having yet been taken to reconcile the differences between the two houses but if Congress were apart from this ready to adjourn no one seems to doubt that an accommodation would be effected
